We grow African Violets and Rex begonias in a wide variety of color and foliage variations. Besides growing a few of the better varieties from other hybridizers we cross-pollinate and raise many seedlings from our own crosses. We select the best of these from which we raise plants and place them on the market for your pleasure.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ORDERING

Please print your name and address plainly and give full mailing instructions.

Be sure to inclose payment as we do not send COD.

In order to hold prices low it is necessary that we ask you to inclose 75¢ extra to help cover packing and mailing costs. When you do this we will guarantee safe arrival to you.

We send Special Handling on distant orders. If you desire Special Delivery or Air Mail please send enough to cover the extra.

Foreign and Canadian customers. Please secure an import permit from your Department of Agriculture and forward it to us. This is very important.

Plants listed in this list are in 2½" pots as we find that this size recovers quickly from the change when shipped. Many are in bud or bloom.

If you will list a few second choice it may save delay in filling your order. We will not substitute when you ask us not to do so.

HOBBY WHOLESALE- We will allow 10% discount on orders for 10 or more plants. 15% on orders for 15 or more plants and 25% discount on orders for 25 or more plants.

In cold weather we recommend Railway Express shipments as they have a better chance of getting through without freezing. If express shipments are desired you may double the above discounts and you pay express charges on arrival.

Be sure to give us your express address and Phone number. when ordering express shipments.

WE GUARANTEE OUR PLANTS TO PASS
YOUR STATE INSPECTION AT TIME OF ARRIVAL.

Black Plastic Compost Covers.

1½ mil. Tough black polyethylene size 8' by 12' $2.50 each.
Large size- 8' by 16' for $3.00 Prepaid.

Compost covered with a black plastic sheet turns into rich, black humus without watering or turning. Just make the heap the usual way, water it well & then cover it with the black plastic sheet. Seal edges with earth.

Try this exciting new compost making method.

These plastic pots do not break easily and they are easily cleaned. They require less watering and do not collect fertilizer salts and algae on the edge. Because there is no evaporation through the pot sides the plant roots stay warmer and bright and growth is generally faster.

These flats are fine for starting cuttings or setting small plants for more root development.

LIGHT- Place your violets where they will get good light at all times but not much direct sunlight in summer months. Give more light during the winter months. When healthy plants show yellowish foliage they may be getting too much light. Very dark green foliage and lack of flowers may mean that they are not getting enough light.

WATERING- Never use cold water. Use water that is near room temperature or lukewarm. If you water from the bottom be sure to remove the plant from the water when the soil shows moist on top. If left too long in water the soil gets soggy and roots will be damaged. The plants should be watered from the top part of the time at least. Top watering helps leach excess salts from the soil. African Violets like to have the foliage sprayed occasionally with lukewarm water and it does not spot the foliage if no sun hits it until it is dry.

TEMPERATURE- The average house temperature of 70 degrees is very satisfactory but they will do well however when the temperature is anywhere between 60 degrees and 80 degrees. They like a fairly even temperature best. Sudden changes of temperature or strong drafts of air may cause the flowers to drop. In cold weather be sure to keep the plants away from unprotected windows at night or when the temperature could go below 60 degrees.

HUMIDITY- Many times the humidity in the home is too low for violets to bloom well. This is especially true in hot air heated homes. When this is the case you can increase the humidity by placing the plants in a saucer or tray of sand or crushed gravel. Keep enough water in the sand or gravel to keep it moist but not enough to allow the pot to stay in contact with water. Often your violets may do best in the kitchen because of higher humidity. However, many of our customers grow excellent violets in every room in the house, even in the basement- with lights.

SOIL- African Violets need a light well drained soil that can be made up of light garden soil, sand, leaf-mold or peat and well rotted barn yard fertilizer. This should be thoroughly sterilized. The above is just a suggestion and may be changed to fit your conditions. If kept loose it should not water log or sour.

FERTILIZERS- Violets should have a feed about every two weeks of a complete fertilizer. Follow the instructions on the package.

WHEN YOUR PLANTS FAIL TO BLOOM- It may be that they have been shifted into a little too large a pot and it will take some time for roots to develop but usually they need more light than they are getting, regular feeding or less water. Let the plants get a little dry before watering. When the plant gets too full of leaves the sunlight cannot reach the place where the buds start and the foliage needs thinning. If many crowns have developed some of these may be removed to allow more light to the center of the plant. Sometimes re-potting is the best way.

CARE OF REX BEGONIAS

Good drainage is the first consideration in growing Rex Begonias. It is best not to overpot them. Aeration and good drainage are desirable. This can be had by using a loose soil mixture and having proper openings in the bottom of the pot. Do not allow pot to stand in water.

Rex Begonias suffer from overwatering, especially if the soil is heavy or poorly drained. A plant kept somewhat pot bound does well.

Many begonias, including Rex, do marvelously well growing entirely in leaf mold or compost. Add a complete plant food after your Rex begonias are well established.

Rex Begonias are a shade plant. North windows will do very well. Set back from window away from direct sunlight is ideal. Shady, sheltered spots are best when you grow them out doors.

Color is variable with some varieties and varies with light, season and soil.

Rex Begonias like a humid atmosphere. If the air in your home is dry this condition can be improved by setting the pot on gravel or sand in a shallow dish and keeping the sand or gravel moist as you would for African Violets. under the same conditions.

Should your Rex Begonia die down it is not necessary to throw it away as it probably can be revived after a month or two rest- on the dry side- by giving it a little water and then feed after it starts up again. It may be a better plant than before.
